Up Again?

Are you going, going, going during the dark of the night?

Frequent urination, especially during the night, is a common symptom of an enlarged prostate. Other symptoms can include:

- Suddenly needing to urinate or difficulty starting;
- Having a weak stream, pain or burning;
- Or feeling like your bladder never completely empties.

But there are treatments that may finally put the misery of an enlarged prostate to sleep. You might even be a candidate for laser therapy.

A Bright Idea for Prostate Relief

Laser therapy is a minimally invasive treatment that may provide fast relief from enlarged prostate symptoms.

Even if you've already been diagnosed with an enlarged prostate and medication is not working, laser therapy might be a better solution. Ask your urologist about the benefits and risks and if it's right for you.
